Member of the independent Child Safeguarding Practice Review Panel (the Panel)

Information pack

WELCOME

Thank you for your interest in becoming a member of the independent Child Safeguarding Practice Review Panel (the Panel).

No public service is more important than safeguarding and promoting children's welfare. Children are among our most vulnerable and need adults around them to take the right action when they are being abused or neglected.

When children are seriously injured or die as a result of abuse or neglect, it is vital that we learn from what happened. No child should suffer harm, abuse or neglect, and reducing this is the Panel's primary focus. The Panel and I share an ongoing mission to deliver child safeguarding reform.

When a child dies, or is seriously harmed, it is important to review the practice of all agencies involved in the child and family's life so we can reflect on what that practice tells us about the protection and support offered. Critically, through systematic review, we can build a picture of child protection practice more generally, helping us identify key learning and focus on what needs to change.

Operational since June 2018, the Panel is accountable to me as Secretary of State for Education but has its own statutory powers, independent of Government and makes its own decisions. The Panel reviews all cases where children die or are seriously harmed and abuse or neglect is known or suspected, to see what learning can be drawn from them. It has power to commission national reviews of serious child safeguarding cases which they believe particularly complex or of national importance. Improvements identified by the Panel's national reviews help those working with children to better safeguard and promote children's welfare.

Further information on the Panel and its work can be found here. We hope you will consider being a part of its vital work.

Members of the Child Safeguarding Practice Review Panel

The Panel currently consists of a Chair, the Chief Social Worker for Children and Families and nine other members from across those professions involved in child safeguarding.

This recruitment exercise seeks to appoint a Panel member to succeed one of the current members with a policing background from December 2023.

We intend for the person recruited to have a background in policing. However, the Panel member will be appointed to fill the role as an individual acting in the public interest and not as a representative of their particular profession, employer or interest group.

The person recruited will need to understand the importance of listening to the voice and experience of the child in serious child safeguarding cases.

The new Panel member will be supported during their initial period with the Panel by both the Chair and Panel Secretariat. This includes introductory conversations with the Chair and support from the Secretariat to understand Panel processes and procedures.

Role Description

Under the leadership of a Chair, Panel members are responsible for looking at serious child safeguarding cases notified to the Panel to determine whether learning could be identified through further analysis or a national review. Responsibilities include leading reviews, supervising fieldwork, undertaking analysis and other activity supporting the Panel's remit. Members are also responsible for supporting the dissemination of learning identified by the Panel to those involved in child safeguarding.

Key Responsibilities

- Drawing on your professional expertise and experience to contribute to Panel decisions and analysis of cases at bi-weekly Panel meetings.
- Ensuring the Panel's reviews identify any improvements that should be made by safeguarding partners or others to safeguard and promote the welfare of children.
- Leading Panel national reviews and other analytical activity supporting the Panel's role and remit.
- Supporting the dissemination of learning identified by the Panel.
- Building and maintaining positive relationships with multi-agency safeguarding partners and practitioners so that up-to-date understanding of child safeguarding, and practice challenges informs your contribution to Panel debate and decisions.
- Providing a regional lead for safeguarding partners in an allocated region. This includes strategic engagement with safeguarding partners in the region, conversations about general or specific issues relating to the Panel's work and, where appropriate, speaking at regional events.

WHO WE'RE LOOKING FOR

The Panel understands the value of having representation from policing to help it bring a multi-agency perspective to its work. The Panel is now specifically looking for a candidate with a background in policing.

Applicants will be assessed against the following criteria. In your application you should demonstrate clearly how you meet each of the following requirements of the post.

Essential criteria

- A background in safeguarding and child protection with experience of working with multi-agency safeguarding hubs and community-based services
- Experience as a strategic leader in the police service, demonstrating a good grasp of the realities and challenges facing senior police leaders in recognising and responding to child abuse and of working within a multi-agency framework.
- Strong interpersonal skills including: the ability and confidence to make and be accountable for impartial, effective and timely decisions drawing on professional experience and knowledge; ability to work collaboratively and effectively with others in a professional decision-making forum; excellent communication skills; and the ability to negotiate between conflicting opinions and values, generating options to reach consensus and deal with difficult situations sensitively.
- Understanding of and commitment to principles of evidence-informed practice and the ability to critically analyse information and synthesise evidence about practice in order to take a strategic perspective on areas for improvement and change, locally and nationally.
- Strong leadership skills to drive forward individual strands of work from scoping through to communication of the final results.

BOARD DIVERSITY

The Department is focused on equality of opportunity and is committed to ensuring that public appointments better represent the views of the communities which they serve. We particularly encourage applicants from underrepresented groups, those based outside London and the South-East and applicants who have achieved success through non-traditional educational routes.

The Department for Education has a strong culture of inclusion and diversity and it wants to encourage applications from people with a diverse range of backgrounds and educational routes. In 2018 we launched a five year strategy to create a department where everyone is able to bring their whole self to work and where honesty, challenge and innovation are encouraged and valued. We are recognised by leading diversity organisations for promoting diversity in the workplace.

The Department champions social mobility in all of its policies and is committed to opening up opportunities for people from all backgrounds, all socio-economic classes and all regions of the UK. We are committed to embedding this principle into our recruitment and public appointments and expect all our leaders, including in arm's length bodies, to take action to attract and retain staff from all backgrounds, while also supporting them to progress within their careers.
